TO DISCLAIM OR NOT TO DISCLAIM: “HOW?” IS THE REAL QUESTION¹

Like many states, Texas enacted a disclaimer statute in the 1970s as tax-motivated disclaimers became more prevalent. Over the years, the disclaimer statute expanded and spawned a trust-related offspring. Because of this piecemeal development, the existing Texas disclaimer statutes (Chapter 122 of the Estates Code and Section 112.010 of the Trust Code) grew quirky and difficult to follow and created traps for the user. Disclaimers were possible under federal tax law that were not expressly allowed by Texas law.

On May 20, 2015, when this paper was submitted, HB 2428 was pending in the Texas Legislature and seemed likely to pass. HB 2428 enacts a Texas version of the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act to replace the current provisions in the Estates Code and the Trust Code. By the time of the Advanced Estate Planning and Probate Law Course on June 10, 2015, we will know if it passed the Legislature, although it could be vetoed by the Governor as late as June 21, 2015. If it passes and is not vetoed, the current disclaimer statutes will be replaced by the new statutes effective September 1, 2015. This paper addresses this subject assuming that HB 2428 passes. (If it doesn't pass, the authors will perform a shadow puppet show instead of presenting this paper.)

This paper briefly discusses the background of Texas's disclaimer statutes and some of the problems under the former statutes. It then discusses the new Texas disclaimer law and offers a guide to using it. Finally, it discusses issues related to federal law which may affect Texas disclaimers. Appendix 1 is a table with the statutory language and a section-by-section commentary. Forms implementing the new Texas disclaimer law were not available when this paper was submitted but are available at texasprobate.com.

Tom Featherston wrote selected portions of this paper, all of which are cogent and insightful. Glenn Karisch and Julia Jonas wrote the other, messier parts.

The Trust Code Committee of the Real Estate, Probate and Trust Law Section of the State Bar of Texas (“REPTL”) is responsible for the new statute, and the authors acknowledge its efforts

I. BACKGROUND OF THE TEXAS DISCLAIMER STATUTES AND PROBLEMS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Enacted in 1971 and amended by nine legislatures, Texas Probate Code Section 37A (“Section 37A”) had been modified in a piecemeal manner for over three decades. The result is currently codified in Texas Estates Code Chapter 122, subchapters A - D (“Chapter 122”). As discussed below, Chapter 122 could be difficult to utilize for several reasons, including the fact that the effectiveness of a disclaimer depends on compliance with technicalities, and that some of the provisions are not consistent with federal law concerning qualified disclaimers for tax purposes.

A. History of Section 37A

Many of the idiosyncrasies of Chapter 122 can be explained through a review of the legislative history of Section 37A. Additionally, the legislative history provides insight about the administrative challenges that arose under different configurations of the disclaimer statute.

1. Enactment – 1971

Section 37A was enacted in 1971 as HB 728. The stated purpose of HB 728 was “to clarify the disclaimer law in Texas” because existing disclaimer law was “vague and unclear.”² As originally enacted, Section 37A consisted of subsections (a) through (f). Fiduciary disclaimers were not addressed under the original statute.

The introductory language in the original statute included the following statement: “Failure to comply with the provisions hereof shall render such disclaimer ineffective except as an assignment of such property to those who would have received same had the person attempting the disclaimer died prior to the decedent.”³ Accordingly, to be effective, a disclaimer had to adhere to the technical requirements of each of the six existing subsections, as applicable.

2. Amendments

- a. 1977 amendment: coordination with federal tax law

² Bill Analysis, Committee on Judiciary, H.B. 728, 62nd Leg., R.S.

³ Tex. Prob. Code § 37A (1971) (third sentence).

Section 37A was significantly revised in 1977 in response to the Tax Reform Act of 1976.⁴ The previous version of Section 37A had permitted disclaimers only within six months after a transfer, but the 1977 amendment extended the deadline to nine months to conform with federal tax law.⁵ Additionally, under the original language, a disclaimer could be revoked with judicial approval within nine months after the date of the transfer.⁶ The 1977 amendment eliminated the judicial revocation procedure to be consistent with the requirement under the Internal Revenue Code that a qualified disclaimer be irrevocable.⁷

The 1977 amendment also clarified the timing for disclaimers of future interests for the first time. Specifically, the following language was added to Section 37A(a): “a written memorandum of disclaimer disclaiming a future interest may be filed not later than nine months after the event determining that the taker of the property of interest is finally ascertained and his interest is indefeasibly vested.”⁸ The relevant provision of the Texas Property Code concerning disclaimers of property from an inter vivos trust was almost identical.⁹

The definition of a qualified disclaimer for federal tax purposes uses the following language to define the permissible timing with respect to a disclaimer of a future interest: “not later than the date which is 9 months after . . . the day on which the transfer creating the interest in such person is made”¹⁰ The Treasury Regulations provide that “[w]ith respect to inter vivos transfers, a transfer creating an interest occurs when there is a completed gift for Federal gift tax purposes”¹¹ Because of the discrepancy between Section 37A and federal law, a disclaimer of a future interest could be effective under Texas law while not constituting a qualified disclaimer for federal tax purposes.

For example, the disclaimer of a contingent remainder interest in a testamentary trust is subject to different deadlines for treatment as a qualified disclaimer under federal law or as an effective disclaimer under Texas law. In this situation, a qualified disclaimer of a contingent remainder interest that vests upon the death of the lifetime beneficiary must be made within nine months of the decedent’s date of death (i.e. the “date on which the transfer creating the interest in [the disclaimant] is made”).¹² In contrast, a disclaimer pursuant to Section 37A would be effective so long as it was made within nine months after the death of the lifetime beneficiary (i.e. the “event determining that the taker of the property is finally ascertained and his interest is indefeasibly vested”).¹³

Finally, the 1977 amendment included provisions permitting a personal representative to disclaim property on behalf of an estate or a ward with court approval, and permitting an independent executor to disclaim property on behalf of an estate without court approval.¹⁴

b. 1993 amendment: relation-back doctrine and other changes

The 1993 Legislature enacted several substantive changes to Section 37A. Prior to 1993, Section 37A provided that a valid disclaimer “shall be effective as of the death of decedent” but did not explicitly address the issue of whether a disclaimer might constitute a fraudulent transfer as to the disclaimant’s creditors.¹⁵ In response to the court’s holding in Dyer v. Eckols, the legislature added language to the initial part of Section 37A codifying the “relation-back” doctrine.

Specifically, the revised statute provided that “[a] disclaimer evidenced as provided herein shall be effective as of the death of decedent and shall relate back for all purposes to the death of the decedent and is not subject to the claims of any creditor of the disclaimant.”¹⁶ Further, the revised language stated that a disclaimer under Section 37A is not a “transfer” for the purposes of the Business & Commerce Code.

Codification of the relation-back doctrine had significant implications in the state creditor-protection context and in the federal bankruptcy context. For example, federal courts have held that under Texas law, pre-petition disclaimers are effective in the bankruptcy context,¹⁷ but post-petition disclaimers are not effective to remove property from the bankruptcy estate.¹⁸

The 1993 amendment included language that is applicable when the decedent’s will directs the disposition of disclaimed property.¹⁹ The 1993 amendment also clarified that a partial disclaimer by a decedent’s surviving spouse did not constitute a disclaimer of any other transfer for the benefit of the surviving spouse.²⁰

c. Other amendments

Amendments in 1979, 1987, 1991, 1995, and 2011 revised provisions of Section 37A regarding the types of property that can be disclaimed, the disclaimer procedures applicable to charitable organizations or governmental agencies, and certain terminology. The 2007 amendment authorized court-approved disclaimers by an agent appointed under a durable power of attorney authorizing disclaimers.²¹

Finally, the 2013 amendment added Estates Code Section 122.107, which provided that a disclaimer by a delinquent child support obligor is ineffective.²² The 2013 amendment also imposed an affirmative requirement that any memorandum of disclaimer include a statement regarding whether the disclaimant is a child support obligor.²³

d. Estates Code Chapter 122

Starting on January 1, 2014, Section 37A was replaced by Chapter 122. As part of the codification process, Section 37A, which consisted of seventeen subsections, was reorganized into four subchapters under Chapter 122 of the Estates Code, with 21 total sections.

Despite the many technical additions and the sheer volume of the statute as amended, Chapter 122 retained one provision of the original statute nearly verbatim: “a disclaimer that does not comply with this chapter is ineffective . . . [except] as an assignment of the disclaimed property” As with the original six-subsection statute, Chapter 122 required technical compliance with all formal requirements to qualify as an effective disclaimer.

B. Equitable rescission of disclaimers

Section 122.004 of the Estates Code stated that a disclaimer that is filed and served as provided in Chapter 122 is irrevocable.²⁴ This provision is consistent with the requirement of irrevocability for a qualified disclaimer for federal tax purposes.²⁵ Section 122.004 applied regardless of whether the disclaimant understood how the disclaimed property would be distributed.

For example, in Northwestern National Casualty Co. v. Doucette,²⁶ the Fort Worth Court of Appeals held that an heir’s disclaimer of her interest in her father’s estate was effective and irrevocable despite the fact that she was mistaken about who the disclaimed property would pass to. The disclaimer recited the disclaimant’s belief that the disclaimed property would pass to her mother, the decedent’s surviving spouse. However, the disclaimant was unaware that the decedent had legally adopted another child, meaning that the adopted child would receive the disclaimed property. The Doucette court upheld the trial court’s finding that the disclaimer was valid and irrevocable “in spite of the probable unintended results of the property distribution.”²⁷

Similarly, in Baker Botts v. Cailloux,²⁸ the San Antonio Court of Appeals rejected a trial court’s award of a constructive trust to compensate a disclaimant for an allegedly mistaken disclaimer. The disclaimant in Cailloux disclaimed her interest in her husband’s residuary estate, causing significant assets to pass to designated charities. Several years later, after the disclaimant had been diagnosed with Alzheimer’s disease, her agent under a durable power of attorney filed a lawsuit against the executor of the husband’s estate and the attorneys who had represented the executor and the disclaimant for breach of fiduciary duty among other claims. The jury found that the executor and the law firm had breached their fiduciary duties to the disclaimant by failing to fully and fairly disclose all important information to her. In awarding damages of $65 million against the defendants to be held in a constructive trust for the disclaimant’s benefit, the trial court stated that it was exercising its “equitable powers” to “place [the disclaimant] in the position she would have held but for the breach of fiduciary duty . . . and had she not signed the disclaimer.”²⁹

The Cailloux court determined that the trial court’s decision was erroneous because there was no evidence that any breach of fiduciary duty had caused the disclaimant to disclaim her interest in property. Of greater relevance, the court stated that the trial court’s imposition of a constructive trust would not have been appropriate even if causation had been proved at trial. This equitable remedy was not appropriate because the defendants did not hold legal title to the disclaimed property. Because the alleged wrongdoers were not the persons who received the property as a result of the disclaimer, the court stated that it was not within the court’s equitable powers to order the defendants to return the disclaimant to her pre-disclaimer position.

In contrast to Doucette and Cailloux, in at least one case a Texas court has found that a disclaimer may be deemed ineffective if the disclaimant executed the disclaimer in reliance on a factual mistake. In McCuen v. Huey,³⁰ the potential disclaimant executed an affidavit filed with the Alabama court in which his brother’s estate was being administered. The affidavit recited “disclaimant’s” belief that the specific gift from the decedent to the disclaimant under the will had been adeemed and that he consented to the distribution of all property of the decedent to the residuary beneficiary. Contrary to this belief, the decedent had owned the gifted property (Texas real property) at death.

The heirs of the residuary beneficiary argued that the affidavit should be treated as a disclaimer for the purposes of determining title to the Texas real property. However, the court concluded that the affidavit was not an effective disclaimer because “to be effective, a disclaimer of an inheritance is enforceable against the maker only when it has been made with adequate knowledge of that which is being disclaimed.”³¹

Note that although the McCuen decision was issued in 2008, the purported disclaimer was executed in the 1960s, prior to the enactment of Section 37A. Further, although the McCuen court referenced Section 37A in its discussion of the potential disclaimer, it reached its conclusion without considering whether the affidavit satisfied the technical requirements for a statutory disclaimer. Finally, the result in McCuen has not been cited in any case decided under Section 37A or Chapter 122. Accordingly, there remained questions as to whether an effective disclaimer under Chapter 122 could be revoked or deemed ineffective based on a mistake of fact.

C. Problems with Chapter 122

1. Must meet all requirements to be effective

Section 122.102 of the Estates Code provided that “a disclaimer which does not comply with this chapter is ineffective” except as an assignment of property. There are 21 sections of Chapter 122 dealing with disclaimers, and many impose requirements. In order for her disclaimer to be effective (a prerequisite to being a qualified disclaimer for federal tax law purposes), the disclaimant had to comply with all of these requirements:

- a. The disclaimer had to be in writing and notarized.³²
- b. It had to include a statement regarding whether the disclaimant was a “child support obligor” whether the disclaimant had minor children, or not.³³
- c. It had to be filed in the decedent’s probate proceeding,³⁴ except in some cases it had to be filed with the county clerk’s office in the county of the decedent’s residence,³⁵ filed with the county clerk of the county in which real property owned by a non-resident decedent is located,³⁶ within nine months of the decedent’s death,³⁷ except in the case of a future interest³⁸ and except if the disclaimant was a charity.³⁹
- d. In addition to the filing requirement, a disclaimer had to be delivered in person to or mailed by registered or certified mail to and received by the personal representative of the decedent’s estate within nine months of the decedent’s death,⁴⁰ except in the case of a future interest,⁴¹ and except if the disclaimant was a charity.⁴²
- e. The disclaimant could not have “previously accepted the property by taking possession or exercising dominion and control of the property as a beneficiary.”⁴³

There were similar, but slightly different, requirements for a beneficiary to disclaim an interest in a trust (delivered to the trustee,⁴⁴ or, if there was no trustee, to the transferor of the interest or his legal representative⁴⁵).

These requirements were unnecessarily burdensome. For example:

- It should not have been necessary to both file with the court and deliver to the executor in order to make the disclaimer effective.

- It should have been possible to send the notice to the executor by courier or delivery service, but the statute required delivery in person or registered or certified mail.
- It should have been sufficient if the notice was mailed to the executor by the deadline – the disclaimant should not have been required to assure that it was received by the executor by the deadline.
- And, of course, it is ridiculous that a disclaimer may have been ineffective simply because it omitted a statement that the disclaimant was not a “child support obligor.”⁴⁶

2. The Texas deadlines didn’t match up with the tax deadlines

The deadlines in the Texas statutes clearly were based on the nine-month deadline for qualified disclaimers for tax purposes. However, as discussed above, the Texas deadlines did not match the tax deadlines perfectly.⁴⁷

3. Disclaimer by a trustee

What happened under Chapter 122 or Trust Code Section 112.010 if a trustee disclaimed property which otherwise would have passed into a trust? Would the property have passed into the trust? In TAM 8549004, which appears to apply Texas law, the Internal Revenue Service concluded that applicable state law did not permit a trustee to disclaim property to avoid having the property pass into the trust.⁴⁸ This was based on three factors:

- a. The trustee, as a fiduciary, had no authority to unilaterally renounce a portion of the trust property on behalf of beneficial interests.
- b. The beneficiaries, holding equitable title to trust property, were entitled to have the properties distributed to the trust.
- c. The state’s disclaimer statute did not broaden a trustee’s function so as to empower the trustee to unilaterally disclaim property. Rather, it could be used only by persons with beneficial interests.

Texas appellate courts have not ruled on this issue, so it is not clear if a Texas court would agree with this analysis.⁴⁹

Under prior law, if the trustee’s disclaimer was accompanied by the beneficiaries’ disclaimer of the property, the disclaimers should have been effective to keep the property out of the trust.⁵⁰ Further, if the trustee asked a court to approve the disclaimer, the per se breach of fiduciary duty issue could have been avoided. Section 115.001(a) of the Trust Code permits a court to relieve a trustee from any duty imposed by the trust instrument or by law. Section 112.054(a) of the Trust Code permits a court to direct or permit the trustee to do acts that are not authorized or are forbidden by the terms of the trust.

Still, this was a very long way around the problem. It seems likely that a different result would be reached under the reasoning in TAM 8549004 if state law expressly permitted a trustee to disclaim and if the law clearly provided that the result of the disclaimer would be that the disclaimed property does not pass into the trust.⁵¹

4. Disclaimer of survivorship property

Federal law permits a disclaimer of survivorship property.⁵² Chapter 122 defined a “beneficiary” who is permitted to disclaim as including persons receiving property as a result of the death of another person by community property with right of survivorship, joint tenancy with right of survivorship or by survivorship agreement,⁵³ but Chapter 122 did not give any more specifics about disclaiming survivorship property.

⁴⁶ This requirement was added in 2013. The requirement may be useful in a few child support cases, but failing to include the statement in the 99% of the cases where child support is not an issue should not have made the disclaimer ineffective.

Code, is effective September 1, 2015.⁵⁴ It is found in new Chapter 240 of the Property Code.⁵⁵

The National Council of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws (NCCUSL) first adopted the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act in 1999. It was last updated in 2010. Eighteen states have enacted versions of the 1999 act.

The Texas Disclaimer Act is divided into four subchapters: Subchapter A – “General Provisions;” Subchapter B – “Type and Effect of Disclaimer;” Subchapter C – “Delivery or Filing;” and Subchapter D – “Disclaimer Barred or Limited.” Different types of disclaimers are addressed separately. For instance, disclaimers by individuals of property passing because of a decedent’s death are governed by Section 240.0511, while disclaimers of property passing for reasons other than a decedent’s death are governed by Section 240.0512, and disclaimers of rights in survivorship property are governed by Section 240.052. Likewise, the delivery or filing requirements applicable to disclaimers depend on the nature of property or interest being disclaimed.

A. Summary of key features of the Texas Disclaimer Act

This paper goes into greater detail about the Texas Disclaimer Act later, but here is a summary of some of its key features:

1. There is just one statute

The Texas Disclaimer Act addresses disclaimers of all types of property in Chapter 240 of the Property Code. There no longer are separate Estates Code and Trust Code statutes.

2. There is no state law time limit for disclaimers

Prior to 1977, federal tax law did not have a hard-and-fast nine-month deadline for qualified disclaimers. Like most states, Texas reacted to the 1977 tax legislation by adopting a nine-month deadline in its statute. However, there is no reason why disclaimers under state law need to be tied to that deadline. As noted above, problems arise because the Texas nine-month deadline does not match perfectly with the tax law deadline. Those problems are eliminated if the Texas statute has no deadline. This is even more relevant in light of the recent increase in the applicable exclusion amount for federal estate tax purposes. Fewer and fewer disclaimers will be tax-based, so there is less and less of a reason to tie Texas’s statute to the tax law deadline.

For a more detailed analysis regarding federal preemption issues and other implications of the decoupled deadline, see Article III below.

3. There are less restrictive technical requirements

Many of the duplicative and logistically challenging technical requirements applicable under Chapter 122 have been eliminated in the Texas Disclaimer Act. For example, when disclaiming property passing by will or intestacy in an estate subject to administration, the Texas Disclaimer Act permits delivery of the disclaimer to the executor to suffice. It is not necessary also to file a disclaimer in the probate proceeding.

4. Different types of property are specifically addressed

The Texas Disclaimer Act includes provisions that are specifically designed to address unique characteristics of different types of property and ownership structures. For example, there are specific provisions regarding survivorship property and beneficiary designation property which are missing in Chapter 122.

5. Fiduciary disclaimers are expanded with clear rules for different types of fiduciaries

The Texas Disclaimer Act more clearly addresses the disclaimer of interests and powers by fiduciaries. The rules for disclaimers by different types of fiduciaries are stated. Trustees are expressly permitted to disclaim property, causing the property not to pass into the trust. For guardians, dependent administrators and trustees of court-created trusts, prior court approval is required. The trustee of a non-court-created trust may seek court approval or may make the disclaimer without court approval by giving the beneficiaries 30 days’ notice. Court approval is required if the effect of the fiduciary disclaimer is to cause the property to pass to the fiduciary individually. The duties of fiduciaries in making disclaimers are clarified.

B. A guide to using the Texas Disclaimer Act

Attached to this paper is a section-by-section analysis of the Texas Disclaimer Act. Here is a discussion of some of the important issues to understand in order to use the new statute.

⁵⁴ The change in the disclaimer statutes raises issues about which statute to follow if the decedent died prior to September 1, 2015. This is discussed in Section II.B.1. below.

⁵⁵ REPTL tried to have the Texas Disclaimer Act placed in Chapter 122 of the Estates Code, since that is where practitioners logically would look for it, but Legislative Council required it to be placed in the Property Code. One of the authors (Tom) likes it this way. There are cross-references to the new statutes in Chapter 122 of the Estates Code and Section 112.010 of the Trust Code.

1. Effective date issues

The Texas Disclaimer Act is effective September 1, 2015, and applies to disclaimers of any interest in or power over property, whenever created.⁵⁶ If the event giving rise to the disclaimer (for example, the death of a decedent) occurs prior to September 1, 2015, should the disclaimant follow the rules of Chapter 240 of the Property Code or the rules of prior law?

The key is to determine if the deadline for making a disclaimer under prior law has passed prior to September 1, 2015. Under prior law, the disclaimer had to be filed not later than nine months after the date of the decedent’s death.⁵⁷ Sections 17 and 18 of HB 2428 provide that the Texas Disclaimer Act applies if the filing and notice provisions under the former law have not elapsed. If the time for filing or delivering notice of a written memorandum of disclaimer under former law has elapsed, the former law applies and is continued in effect for that purpose.

In most cases, this means that:

1. If the disclaimer is based on a decedent dying on or before November 30, 2014, the old law applies, including the nine-month deadline and the notice and filing requirements.
2. If the disclaimer is based on a decedent dying on or after December 1, 2014, the new law applies. The nine-month deadline under the former law does not apply, and the new notice requirements apply if the disclaimer is made on or after September 1, 2015. If the disclaimer is made prior to September 1, then the old notice and filing requirements apply.⁵⁸

When in doubt, following the rules for disclaiming under the former law is a safe option since in most cases a disclaimer under former law will meet the requirements of the new law as well.

⁵⁶ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.003 (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁵⁷ Tex. Est. Code §122.055(a). The beginning of the nine-month period for disclaimer of a future interest is different. Tex. Est. Code §122.055(b).

⁵⁸ Determining the applicable law if the death occurred on December 1, 2014, is tricky. Tex. Est. Code §122.055 provides that the disclaimer must be filed “not later than nine months after the date of the decedent’s death.” Nine months would fall exactly on September 1, 2015, which is the effective date of the new act. This probably means that the new law applies, but it would be safer to comply with the former law and complete the disclaimer prior to September 1, 2015.

2. Illustrating the basics: A non-fiduciary disclaimer in a decedent’s estate

What are the keys to disclaiming in the simplest of cases – a disclaimer by an individual of property received from a decedent’s estate?

- a. There is no deadline, so long as the disclaimer is made before accepting the property.

One of the major changes of the Texas Disclaimer Act is abandonment of the nine-month deadline for disclaimers. A disclaimer still may have to be made within nine months of the decedent’s death to be a qualified disclaimer for tax purposes, but a disclaimer can be effective for state law purposes even if it is made more than nine months after the decedent’s death.

What sets the state law deadline for a disclaimer under the new statute? Acceptance. A disclaimer is barred if “the disclaimant accepts the interest sought to be disclaimed by: (A) taking possession of the interest; or (B) exercising dominion and control over the interest.”⁵⁹ The “taking possession” and “exercising dominion and control” language was intentionally added to the Texas version of the uniform act so that the acceptance standard under prior law will not change.⁶⁰

This should make it possible for a debtor who has not filed a petition in bankruptcy to disclaim property more than nine months after a decedent’s death and thereby avoid having the property go to the debtor’s creditors, so long as the debtor has not accepted the property.⁶¹

What if the individual wishing to disclaim also is the executor of the estate? No problem. Acceptance of property in a fiduciary capacity is not an acceptance of the property in an individual capacity and does not bar a disclaimer in an individual capacity.⁶² Practitioners believe that the same result would have been reached under the former law, but the former law did not expressly state it.

- b. What must the disclaimer instrument contain?

To be effective, a disclaimer must be in writing, declare the disclaimer, describe the interest or power disclaimed and be signed by the person making the ⁵⁹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.151(b)(1) (assuming passage of HB 2428). A disclaimer also is barred by a written waiver, if the disclaimant voluntarily assigns, conveys, encumbers, pledges, or transfers the interest, of the interest sought to be disclaimed is sold under a judicial sale. See Tex. Prop. Code § 240.101 (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁰ See former Tex. Est. Code §122.104 and former Tex. Prop. Code § 112.010 (c-1).

⁶² Tex. Prop. Code § 240.151(c) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

disclaimer.⁶³ It does not need to be notarized, unless of course it must be recorded in the real property records. If the person is disclaiming a partial interest, he or she may express that interest as a fraction, percentage, monetary amount, term of years, limitation of a power, or any other interest or estate in the property.⁶⁴

c. What about delivering or filing it?

If there is a personal representative of the estate, the disclaimer must be delivered to the personal representative,⁶⁵ and it does not have to be filed or recorded anywhere. It may be delivered by personal delivery, first-class mail, facsimile, e-mail, or “any other method likely to result in the disclaimer’s receipt.”⁶⁶ If that’s too loosey-goosey for the disclaimant, there is a safe harbor: if the disclaimer is mailed to the intended recipient by certified mail, return receipt requested, at an address the disclaimant in good faith believes is likely to result in the disclaimer’s receipt, delivery is considered to have occurred on the date of mailing regardless of receipt.⁶⁷

If there is no personal representative of the estate, the disclaimer must be filed in the official public records of any county in which the decedent was domiciled on the date of death or owned real property.⁶⁸ Thus, if it is unclear if the decedent was domiciled in Collin County, where her home is located, or in Dallas County, where the nursing home in which she resided at death is located, the disclaimant safely may file the disclaimer in any county in which the decedent owned real property and it will be effective with respect to other real and personal property even if the other property is not located in the county of filing or if the decedent was not domiciled in the county of filing.

d. To whom does the disclaimed property go?

If the will or other instrument creating the interest says where it goes in the event of a disclaimer, the interest goes where the instrument says it goes.⁶⁹

⁶³ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.009(a) (assuming passage of HB 2428). It also must be delivered or filed as provided elsewhere in the Act (discussed in Section II.B.2.c. below).

⁶⁴ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.009(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁵ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.102(1) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁶ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.101(a) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁷ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.101(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁸ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.102(2) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁶⁹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.051(d) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

Under prior law, the testator or settlor had the ability to control where disclaimers went by including provisions in the instrument. This ability may take on greater importance under the Texas Disclaimer Act because of the abandonment of the nine-month deadline for disclaimers. Currently, many well-drafted wills and trusts address what happens when a surviving spouse disclaims property – causing it to pass into a credit-shelter trust.⁷⁰ In the future drafters may come up with more creative ways to plan for disclaimers.

If the instrument does not say where the disclaimed property goes, then it passes as if the disclaimant had died immediately before the decedent’s death.⁷¹ There are provisions in the Texas Disclaimer Act that address passage of the property in more unusual cases, such as when the disclaimant is a charity or other non-natural person⁷² or when there are unusual facts making it difficult to determine the takers of the property.⁷³

e. When is the disclaimer effective?

The disclaimer takes effect as of the time of the decedent’s death and relates back for all purposes to the time of the decedent’s death.⁷⁴ This “relates back” language was intentionally added to the Texas version of the uniform act to make it clear that Texas still follows the relation-back doctrine. A disclaimed interest is not subject to the claims of any creditor of the disclaimant.⁷⁵

3. Disclaimers by individuals of other types of property

One of the benefits of the Texas Disclaimer Act is that it provides specific guidance for disclaiming property received from different sources.

Here is an example: To disclaim property passing by right of survivorship:

⁷⁰ This technique is possible because Treas. Reg. § 25.2518-2(e)(2) permits a surviving spouse – and only a surviving spouse – to disclaim property and still to retain an interest in and power over that property without adverse tax consequences.

⁷¹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.051(e)(2) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷² Tex. Prop. Code § 240.051(e)(1) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷³ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.0511 (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷⁴ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.051(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷⁵ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.051(b)(2) (assuming passage of HB 2428). This may not be the case if the disclaimer is made after the disclaimant is the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding. See the discussion in Sections I.A.2.b. above and III.C. below.

1. The disclaimant must give notice of the disclaimer to the person to whom the disclaimed interest passes,⁷⁶ and
2. The disclaimed interest passes as if the disclaimant predeceased the holder to whose death the disclaimer relates.⁷⁷

Here is another example: To disclaim property passing by beneficiary designation:

1. If the disclaimer occurs before the interest passing by beneficiary designation becomes irrevocable, the disclaimant must give notice of the disclaimer to the person making the beneficiary designation,⁷⁸ or
2. If the disclaimer occurs after the interest passing by beneficiary designation becomes irrevocable, the disclaimant must give notice of the disclaimer to the person obligated to distribute the interest (in other words, the insurance company, the retirement plan administrator, etc.).⁷⁹

The notice requirements for different types of property interests are found in Sections 240.101 – 240.111.

4. Fiduciary disclaimers

The Texas Disclaimer Act has extensive provisions governing disclaimers by fiduciaries such as guardians, personal representatives, agents, and trustees. Fiduciary disclaimers are different from individual disclaimers because of the dual roles the fiduciary plays.

1. The person serving as fiduciary has individual interests and powers. For example, a trustee has the power to make distributions to trust beneficiaries based on the standard in the trust instrument. The person serving as trustee may wish to disclaim a power over property which he or she does not wish to hold or which might cause tax or creditor problems if he or she held it. The person may wish to disclaim an undesired power even before beginning to serve as fiduciary.
2. As a fiduciary, the person serves as a representative of another (as in the case of a guardian, executor, administrator or agent) or as the holder of legal title for the benefit of beneficiaries (as in the case of a trustee). In representing a ward, estate or agent or in acting on behalf of a trust, the fiduciary may wish to disclaim interests or property which otherwise would pass to the ward, estate, agent or trust.

While in many respects the same issues affecting individual disclaimers also affect fiduciary disclaimers, the Texas Disclaimer Act specifically addresses those issues which are unique to fiduciary disclaimers.

a. Disclaimer of powers by a person designated to serve as or serving as a fiduciary

What if a trust instrument gives the named trustee powers which would constitute a general power of appointment? The designated individual may be willing to serve as trustee, but not if the trust property would be subject to his creditors or included in his estate for tax purposes. The answer, of course, is that the individual may disclaim the offending powers. How does this work, and what issues may arise?

Section 240.007 addresses disclaimers of this type in detail. It permits the person designated to serve as, or serving as, fiduciary the power to disclaim any power over property, including a power of appointment and the power to disclaim.

If the person is designated to serve as a trustee, the disclaimer of this power could affect beneficiaries’ rights. For example, if the trustee wishes to disclaim the power to make distributions for the beneficiaries’ “comfort,” the disclaimer may solve a tax problem for the trustee-designate, but it also may eliminate a beneficiary’s right to receive distributions for comfort. The Texas Disclaimer Act addresses this situation by:

1. Requiring the person to disclaim this type of power only on or after accepting the trust.
2. Making it clear that the disclaimer must be compatible with the trustee’s fiduciary obligations.⁸⁰

If the trustee is serving when the disclaimer is made, the trustee owes the beneficiaries fiduciary duties and the disclaimer must be compatible with those duties. If the disclaimer improperly and adversely affects a beneficiary’s rights, the beneficiary has recourse against the trustee. Of course, because in many cases a disclaimer of distributive powers will not harm the beneficiaries and will provide tax benefits, giving the trustee the ability to disclaim is worthwhile.

⁷⁶ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.106 (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷⁷ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.240.052(c) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷⁸ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.105(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁷⁹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.105(c) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁸⁰ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.007(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

This requirement – that a trustee must first begin to serve as trustee before disclaiming a power affecting beneficiaries’ distributive rights – does not apply to other types of fiduciaries or to trustees if the power being disclaimed does not affect beneficiaries’ rights. In these other situations, the person designated to serve as a fiduciary may disclaim the power before beginning to serve as a fiduciary.⁸¹ This means that the person does not owe fiduciary duties to the beneficiary when the disclaimer is being made.

b. Fiduciary duties versus court approval

As discussed below, some fiduciary disclaimers require court approval, while others do not. Whether or not it is required, “unless a court of competent jurisdiction approves the disclaimer, a disclaimer by a fiduciary acting in a fiduciary capacity must be compatible with the fiduciary’s fiduciary obligations.”⁸² Thus, if a fiduciary goes ahead with a disclaimer without court approval, he or she faces potential liability for breach of fiduciary duty.

An independent executor has a duty to collect the assets of the decedent’s estate. A trustee has a duty to preserve the trust’s corpus. How can an independent executor or trustee ever disclaim without breaching his or her fiduciary duties? The Texas Disclaimer Act addresses this by saying a disclaimer by a fiduciary acting in a fiduciary capacity “is not a per se breach of the fiduciary’s fiduciary obligations.”⁸³ This avoids the absurdity of having the Texas Disclaimer Act permit fiduciary disclaimers without court approval but making them impossible by imposing fiduciary duties.

If fiduciary disclaimers are subject to fiduciary duties “unless a court of competent jurisdiction approves the disclaimer,” does that mean that fiduciaries who obtain court approval cannot be challenged later for the decision to disclaim? This is a logical reading of the statute and probably is how it will be construed. Still, the statute stops short of saying that a fiduciary obtaining court approval has no fiduciary duties with respect to the decision to disclaim.

c. Equitable remedies voiding the disclaimer are not available

If a beneficiary successfully shows that a fiduciary breached his or her fiduciary obligations in making a disclaimer, can a court declare the disclaimer to be void or otherwise make the disclaimer ineffective? No. The Texas Disclaimer Act expressly decides the equitable rescission issue for fiduciary disclaimers: “Possible remedies for a breach of fiduciary obligations do not include declaring an otherwise effective disclaimer void or granting other legal or equitable relief that would make the disclaimer ineffective.”⁸⁴ The beneficiary is limited to other remedies – damages or removal, for example. The reason for this provision is to provide finality and certainty about the effect of a disclaimer.

Does this completely eliminate the possibility of an equitable rescission of a disclaimer? In McCuen v. Huey,⁸⁵ discussed above, the court held a disclaimer to be ineffective based on a mistake of fact. Even though the Texas Disclaimer Act precludes rescission of a fiduciary disclaimer as a remedy for breach of fiduciary duty, the act does not explicitly address rescission of disclaimers in any other context (such as a disclaimer by an individual, or a disclaimer by a fiduciary that did not constitute a breach of fiduciary duty).

Accordingly, there may be a slight opening for equitable rescission of a disclaimer if a situation similar to the facts of McCuen arose after enactment of the Texas Disclaimer Act: a disclaimer based on a mistake of fact by someone other than a fiduciary. However, the most well-reasoned interpretation of Texas law is that equitable rescission of disclaimers based on a mistake of law or fact, either before or after enactment of the Texas Disclaimer Act, is not available. As discussed above, there are several reasons to doubt that the McCuen court’s reasoning applies to statutory disclaimers at all. Further, after Vermont adopted the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act, the Vermont Supreme Court considered a similar question: could a mother’s disclaimer of her interest in her son’s estate be revoked based on her claim that she did not understand the disclaimer that she executed?⁸⁶ After considering the language of the uniform act and reviewing other case law, the court concluded that “disclaimers are not revocable based on disclaimant’s mistake of law.”⁸⁷ However, the court reserved the right to rescind the disclaimer if the fact finder found undue influence, coercion, or incompetence in the execution of the disclaimer.⁸⁸ Since the Texas Disclaimer Act instructs courts to consider uniformity among states enacting the uniform act in applying and construing it,⁸⁹ the Vermont court’s interpretation of the uniform act is likely to be followed in Texas: disclaimers should almost always be irrevocable, but there may be a remedy available to victims of especially egregious cases of manipulation and abuse.⁹⁰

d. Disclaimers requiring court approval

Prior court approval of a disclaimer by a fiduciary is required in these situations:

1. A disclaimer by a personal representative who is not an independent executor or independent administrator (in other words, a guardian, temporary guardian, dependent administrator, or temporary administrator).
2. A disclaimer by the trustee of a court-created trust established under Chapter 1301 of the Estates Code or Section 142.005 of the Texas Property Code.
3. A disclaimer that would result in an interest in or power over property passing to the person making the disclaimer.⁹¹

The requirement of court approval if the disclaimer would result in an interest or power over property passing to the person making the disclaimer was added (1) to assure that the fiduciary making the disclaimer does not possess a general power of appointment for federal tax purposes and (2) to provide a layer of protection for beneficiaries. This requirement applies only to a disclaimer by a fiduciary. It does not require court approval of a disclaimer if, as a result of a disclaimer by an individual (non-fiduciary), an interest in or power over property passes to that individual. This permits the common technique of permitting a surviving spouse to disclaim an interest which then passes into a credit shelter trust of which the spouse is a beneficiary and trustee.⁹²

e. Disclaimers not requiring court approval

Except for the three cases stated above where court approval is specifically required, a disclaimer by ⁹⁰ Because of Tex. Prop. Code § 240.008(g) (assuming passage of HB 2428), rescission would not be available if a fiduciary (rather than an individual) made the disclaimer, even if the facts were egregious, if the claim is based on a breach of the fiduciary’s fiduciary obligations.

⁹¹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.008(c) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

⁹² A special tax rule permits a spouse to disclaim while retaining an interest in the disclaimed property. 26 U.S.C. §2518(b)(4)(A). The spouse may serve as trustee of a trust receiving the disclaimed property only if her ability to make distributions is limited by an ascertainable standard. Treas. Reg. §25.2518-2(e)(2). A Texas disclaimer does not have to comply with these tax rules, but adverse tax consequence may accompany noncompliance.

a fiduciary acting in a fiduciary capacity does not require court approval to be effective unless the instrument that created the fiduciary relationship requires court approval.⁹³ This includes disclaimers by independent executors, independent administrators or agents under powers of attorney.

f. A special case: disclaimer by natural guardian

Borrowing a provision from the Florida version of the uniform act,⁹⁴ the Texas Disclaimer Act permits the natural guardian (parent) of a minor to disclaim on behalf of the minor an interest in or power over property that the minor is to receive solely as a result of another disclaimer, but only if there is no court-appointed guardian and only if the disclaimed interest does not pass to or for the benefit of the natural guardian as a result of the disclaimer.⁹⁵

This provides the potential to solve a common problem with disclaimers. Under prior law, a disclaimer strategy might not work because a parent making a disclaimer has minor children who would receive the property instead of the intended recipient. If the child would receive the property only if her mother disclaimed, then there is no policy reason why the mother should not be permitted to disclaim on the child’s behalf without court approval, allowing the property to pass as if the mother and all her descendants predeceased.

The natural guardian making this type of disclaimer is a fiduciary and owes fiduciary duties to the child. Since there is no court approval, the disclaimer must be compatible with the natural guardian’s fiduciary obligations.⁹⁶

g. Trustee disclaimers

A driving force for adoption of the Texas Disclaimer Act was to allow disclaimers by trustees that cause the disclaimed property not to pass into the trust. It may have been possible to do this under former law, but the result was not clear and it required extra steps.⁹⁷

If a trustee disclaimer results in property not passing into a trust with no action by a trust beneficiary, the trust beneficiary is vulnerable and the trustee is faced with possible claims of breach of fiduciary duty. Because of a trustee’s duty to collect and administer the trust corpus, it might be a per se breach of trust for a trustee to disclaim.

REPTL considered different ways to balance ease of use, protection of the trustee, and protection of beneficiaries. The Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act itself allows trustee disclaimers without notice to beneficiaries and without court approval. Comments to the uniform act mention that a trustee who disclaims is subject to fiduciary duties, but it does not contain a statutory provision to this effect. States adopting versions of the uniform act have approached trustee disclaimers in variety of ways:

1. Follow the uniform act – permit trustee disclaimers with no notice and no court approval.
2. Require court approval for all trustee disclaimers.
3. Prohibit trustee disclaimers.

(1) Court approval or notice

The Texas Disclaimer Act expressly allows trustee disclaimers. If the trust is a court-created trust, court approval of the disclaimer is required.⁹⁸ If, as a result of the trustee's disclaimer, the trustee individually will receive an interest in or power over property, court approval of the disclaimer is required.⁹⁹ In all other cases, the trustee has a choice:

1. The trustee may get court approval; or
2. The trustee may give the beneficiaries 30 days' notice prior to disclaiming.¹⁰⁰

If the trustee chooses to give notice, the act contains detailed provisions about which beneficiaries are entitled to notice, what must be included in the notice and the rights of beneficiaries receiving notice.¹⁰¹

A trustee's disclaimer without court approval must be compatible with the trustee's fiduciary obligations.¹⁰²

If the trustee chooses to forego court approval and instead gives notice, may he or she require adult beneficiaries to consent and release claims as a condition to making the disclaimer?¹⁰³ The potential problem is Treas. Reg. §25.2518-2(d)(1). In order to be a tax-qualified disclaimer, the disclaimant cannot accept "the interest or any of its benefits, expressly or impliedly, prior to making the disclaimer." This prevents individuals from receiving consideration for making a disclaimer. Is the trustee receiving consideration if he or she conditions making the disclaimer on getting a release? And if the disclaimer is not conditioned on getting the release, is there consideration for the release? The cases on pre-arranged complex disclaimer arrangements are pretty generous for the taxpayer, so a trustee might consider this path after further research and soul-searching.¹⁰⁴

(2) Where does the disclaimed property go?

If a trustee disclaims property that would have become trust property, the Texas Disclaimer Act provides that the property passes as if all current, presumptive remainder, and contingent beneficiaries of the trust died before the trust became irrevocable or never existed (in the case of non-individual beneficiaries).¹⁰⁵ In other words, the trust is treated as never having existed for the purposes of the disclaimed property. The property passes to the next beneficiary provided under the governing instrument.

All of the trust beneficiaries are treated as having died only for purposes determining the disposition of an interest in property disclaimed by a trustee that otherwise would have passed into the trust. They are not treated as having died for other purposes of the instrument.¹⁰⁶ Therefore, if the next beneficiary provided under the governing instrument also was a beneficiary of the trust subject to the disclaimer, that beneficiary is not treated as having died for purposes of the contingent gift.

For instance, consider a will with a pecuniary gift to a credit shelter trust and the residuary gift to the surviving spouse. If the trustee of the credit shelter trust disclaimed an interest in property, the property would pass to the surviving spouse as part of the residuary estate, regardless of the survival of the testamentary trust's remainder beneficiaries. The surviving spouse is treated as having died for purposes of the credit shelter trust disclaimer but is not treated as having died with respect to the residuary gift.

¹⁰³ Section 114.032 of the Trust Code provides that a written agreement, including a release, between a trustee and a beneficiary is final and binding on the beneficiary and any person represented by the beneficiary if the instrument is signed by a beneficiary with legal capacity who has full knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the agreement.

This provides a useful planning technique for decedents with nontaxable estates who die with old tax-planned wills, but only if the credit shelter gift is the pre-residuary gift. In these cases, it usually is more beneficial for the property to be taxable in the surviving spouse’s estate (because of the adjustment to basis at the second death) than for the credit shelter trust to be established (which is not needed for estate tax savings and which precludes basis step-up).¹⁰⁷

1. If the gift to the credit shelter trust is the pre-residuary gift and the gift to the surviving spouse or to a qualified terminable interest property (“QTIP”) trust is the residuary gift, a disclaimer by the trustee of the credit shelter trust will cause the property to pass to the surviving spouse or to the QTIP trust, each of which qualifies for basis adjustment at the death of the surviving spouse.
2. This technique is unlikely to work if the pre-residuary gift is to the surviving spouse or QTIP trust and the residuary gift is to the credit shelter trust. The Texas Disclaimer Act does not permit “upstream” disclaimers, only “downstream.” In this case, if the trustee of the credit shelter trust disclaims, the property is likely to pass to the decedent’s descendants, not to the surviving spouse.¹⁰⁸

5. Other Texas Disclaimer Act issues

a. Effect of spendthrift provision and provisions in instrument granting or limiting disclaimer power

What if the governing instrument contains a spendthrift provision that states that “the interest of a beneficiary in gifted property may not be voluntarily or involuntarily transferred before payment or delivery of the interest to the beneficiary by the trustee”?¹⁰⁹ Is the beneficiary’s disclaimer a prohibited “transfer” for purposes of the spendthrift provision? The Texas Disclaimer Act comprehensively answers “no.”¹¹⁰ A spendthrift provision never prevents a disclaimer from being effective.

If a governing instrument includes a specific restriction on the right to disclaim, the answer depends on who is attempting to disclaim. A person other than a fiduciary can always disclaim, even if the governing instrument purports to forbid disclaimers.¹¹¹ Accordingly, the right of an individual to disclaim cannot be limited.

A fiduciary disclaimer is barred if the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship explicitly prohibits disclaimers.¹¹² A fiduciary acting in a fiduciary capacity may nonetheless disclaim if an instrument other than the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship prohibits disclaimers.¹¹³ Note that the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship will generally be the instrument creating the disclaimed interest or power only in the case of a trust. In the case of a guardianship, the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship is a court order. Even if the instrument providing for a gift of property to the ward prohibited disclaimers, the guardian would not be bound by that provision, as the gift instrument would be “an instrument other than the instrument that created the fiduciary relationship” and accordingly could not bar a disclaimer.¹¹⁴ Similarly, property passing to an estate or a principal pursuant to another individual’s gift could be disclaimed by the executor or agent, respectively, even if the instrument providing for the gift prohibited disclaimers (although the disclaimer would be barred by a provision in the will or power of attorney stating that the fiduciary could not disclaim on behalf of the estate or principal).

In contrast, a trustee is bound by the terms of the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship, which in most cases is also the instrument creating an interest or power. For example, a person who is designated as the trustee of a testamentary trust, governed by a will that prohibits fiduciary disclaimers, either must accept the appointment as trustee with all powers granted under ¹⁰⁷ For a discussion of this subject, see Mickey Davis, Basis Adjustment Planning, 38th Annual Advanced Estate Planning & Probate Course (2014).

¹⁰⁸ If the residuary gift is to the credit shelter trust and the entire residuary gift is community property, it may be possible to cause the property to pass to the surviving spouse through a series of disclaimers. If the trustee of the credit shelter trust disclaims and all contingent takers under the terms of the instrument (usually this will be all of decedent’s living descendants) disclaim, an intestacy may be created. Under Tex. Est. Code §201.003(b)(1), all of the community estate passes by intestacy to the surviving spouse if there is no surviving descendant of the decedent. This approach may not be as far-fetched as it sounds since a parent may disclaim for his or her minor children without court approval in this situation.¹⁰⁸ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.008(e) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

¹⁰⁹ See Tex. Prop. Code § 112.035.

Code §§ 240.006(b) (applying to a person other than a fiduciary), 240.007(c) (applying to a person designated to serve or serving as a fiduciary, as to disclaimer of a power), 240.008(a)(1) (applying to a fiduciary acting in a fiduciary capacity, as to disclaimer of an interest in or power over property) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

¹¹¹ Tex. Prop. Code § 240.006(b) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

¹¹² Tex. Prop. Code §§ 240.007(a) (person designated to serve or serving as a fiduciary), 240.008(a) (fiduciary acting in fiduciary capacity) (assuming passage of HB 2428).

the will or must decline to serve as trustee.¹¹⁵ There can be no disclaimer of unwanted powers if the will prohibits disclaimers. Similarly, after accepting the appointment as trustee, the trustee cannot disclaim any interest in property passing to the trust because of the will’s prohibition on fiduciary disclaimers.¹¹⁶

b. Tax savings catch-all

Although it is not necessary to comply with Section 2518 of the Internal Revenue Code in order for a disclaimer to be effective under the Texas Disclaimer Act, the act includes a safe harbor for disclaimers that are qualified for federal tax purposes. Specifically, Section 240.057 provides that if a disclaimed interest is treated under the Internal Revenue Code as never having been transferred to the disclaimant, the disclaimer is effective as a disclaimer under the Texas Disclaimer Act.¹¹⁷ Under this provision, a disclaimant that is focused on making a qualified disclaimer for federal tax purposes can follow the guidance under Section 2518 and the developed case law in order to comply with federal law and be assured that the disclaimer will be effective for state law purposes as well. Note that the Texas Disclaimer Act does not require compliance with Section 2518; rather, Section 240.057 is a permissive provision that provides an alternative method of executing an effective disclaimer.

c. Are non-statutory disclaimers permitted?

Prior to the enactment of Texas’s first disclaimer statute in 1971, common law disclaimers were permitted.¹¹⁸ The 1971 statute provided that “[f]ailure to comply with the provisions hereof shall render such disclaimer ineffective except as an assignment of such property to those who would have received same had the person attempting the disclaimer died prior to the decedent.”¹¹⁹ Until the enactment of the Texas Disclaimer Act, this basic language had remained a part of Texas’s disclaimer statutes and most recently appeared in Section 122.102 of the Estates Code. If by statute a disclaimer was “ineffective except as an assignment,” common law disclaimers were barred.

HB 2428 repeals Section 122.102. It amends Section 122.201 of the Estates Code to provide that “a person who is entitled to receive property ... and does not disclaim the property under Chapter 240, Property Code, may assign the property ... to any person.” This is not the same thing as saying that a disclaimer not in compliance with the statute is an assignment.

The Texas Disclaimer Act does not have a provision similar to the repealed Section 122.102. Instead, Section 240.003 states that Chapter 240 of the Property Code “applies to disclaimers of any interest in or power over property, whenever created, and Section 240.004 states that, unless displaced by a provision of Chapter 240, the principles of law and equity supplement the chapter and that the chapter “does not limit any right of a person to waive, release, disclaim, or renounce an interest in or power over property under a statute [not law] other than this chapter.” (Emphasis and bracketed language added.)

Professor Adam Hirsch of the University of San Diego School of Law has commented on this part of the uniform act. He believes that, unless a state changes the uniform act, the provision that the act does not limit any right of a person to disclaim under a “law” other than the act permits common law disclaimers. He thinks this is problematic,¹²⁰ and he urged REPTL to address it.

The Texas Disclaimer Act addresses the issue by changing the word “law” to “statute” in Section 240.004(b) of the Property Code. The act does not limit disclaimer rights under another statute. Does this mean that it limits disclaimer rights under common law? The Act does not say that common law disclaimers are barred. A court is likely to interpret the new act to mean that non-statutory disclaimers are barred. Still, there is a tiny crack through which someone may attempt to squeeze to assert a common law right to disclaim. Because of the breadth of the Texas Disclaimer Act and because it eliminates the nine-month deadline for disclaimers, it is hard to imagine a case in which someone would intentionally try to make a common law disclaimer. If the issue arises at all (which is unlikely), it probably will arise in an attempt to cure a problem with a disclaimer that failed to meet the requirements of the Texas Disclaimer Act (such as a failure to deliver the disclaimer to the proper person before filing a petition in bankruptcy).

III. FEDERAL ISSUES

If a disclaimer includes making sure the disclaimant is not treated as having ever received the disclaimed property for federal tax law purposes, the requirements of IRC § 2518 will still need to be met. For example, the disclaimer must be made within Section 2518’s nine-month rule requirements. As noted above, a tax-motivated disclaimer made pursuant to Section 2518 would still be a valid disclaimer for Texas law purposes.¹²¹ If the disclaimer does not meet the requirements of Section 2518, the disclaimant will be deemed to have made a transfer for gift tax purposes (recall donative intent not required), perhaps requiring the filing of a gift tax return and even triggering gift tax liability.

A. Federal tax liens

In Drye v. United States, 528 U.S. 49 (1999), the Supreme Court held that a disclaimer by the decedent’s statutory heir could not defeat a federal tax lien on the heir’s property as a matter of federal law. In that case, the decedent’s insolvent heir owed unpaid income taxes at the time of the decedent’s death. The heir disclaimed after the decedent’s death, resulting in the property passing under state law to the disclaimant’s child.

In reaching its decision, the Supreme Court focused on the statutory tax lien statute, IRC § 6321 – the lien attaches to the taxpayer’s “property and rights to property.” Thus, the lien attached to the disclaimant’s interest in the decedent’s estate at the time of the decedent’s death (notwithstanding state-law relation back theory).

B. Disclaimant’s bankruptcy

While lacking a definitive Supreme Court decision or statute on point, most federal courts have focused on whether the disclaimer was “pre-” or “post-” petition. If the disclaimer took place prior to filing for bankruptcy, state law applies, and the disclaimer is effective. If the disclaimant is already in bankruptcy, federal law applies, and the disclaimer is ineffective. Relevant Texas cases follow these rules.¹²²

C. ERISA beneficiaries

ERISA states that its provisions supercede all state laws as they may relate to any employee benefit plan.¹²³ The Fifth Circuit has held that a disclaimer consistent with state law guidelines was not effective as a disclaimer of pension benefits, because it did not comply with the plan’s prescribed method of disclaimer.¹²⁴

While not exactly on point, in Kennedy v. Plan Administrator, the Supreme Court has held that a waiver by the participant’s spouse during a divorce proceeding was not effective since it did not meet the execution requirements of the plan’s “disclaimer” provisions.¹²⁵

D. Medicaid eligibility

In addressing Medicaid eligibility, federal law defines as a resource any property the individual is entitled to but does not receive because of action taken by the individual.¹²⁶ That language has been interpreted to cause a disclaimer to be treated as if the property had been received by the disclaimant and then transferred by the disclaimant for long-term care Medicaid eligibility.¹²⁷

While states have the authority to develop their own eligibility requirements under 42 U.S.C. 1396(a)(1), the states are required to follow certain federal mandates.¹²⁸ Thus, under Texas and federal law, disclaimers are generally treated as transfers.¹²⁹

However, in their excellent article, Farrell and Pak discuss the possibility that a disclaimer may not be treated as a transfer if Medicaid is available as a result of SSI eligibility. They refer to 42 U.S.C. § 1382b(c)(1)(A)(i) and a paper by Reba Collins, Questions Regarding Trusts and Other SSI Issues, presented at the University of Texas School of Law Special Needs Trusts Conference 2011.

IV. CONCLUSION

Disclaimers can be effective tools in planning and administration. The Texas Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act should make disclaimers easier and more effective.

APPENDIX 1 – THE TEXAS UNIFORM DISCLAIMER OF PROPERTY INTERESTS ACT (PROPERTY CODE CHAPTER 240) – TEXT AND COMMENTARY

Section	Title	Text of Statute	Commentary
Subchapter A – General Provisions
240.001.	Short Title.	This chapter may be cited as the Texas Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act.	The disclaimer act is found in the Property Code, but it is not a part of the Trust Code. Just like Tex. Prop. Code §111.001 permits a reference to the “Texas Trust Code,” this section permits practitioners to refer to this chapter by title.
240.002.	Definitions.	In this chapter: (1) "Current beneficiary" and "presumptive remainder beneficiary" have the meanings assigned by Section 112.071. (2) "Disclaim" means to refuse to accept an interest in or power over property, including an interest or power the person is entitled to: (A) by inheritance; (B) under a will; (C) by an agreement between spouses for community property with a right of survivorship; (D) by a joint tenancy with a right of survivorship; (E) by a survivorship agreement, account, or interest in which the interest of the decedent passes to a surviving beneficiary; (F) by an insurance, annuity, endowment, employment, deferred compensation, or other contract or arrangement; (G) under a pension, profit sharing, thrift, stock bonus, life insurance, survivor income, incentive, or other plan or program providing retirement, welfare, or fringe benefits with respect to an employee or a self-employed individual; or (H) by an instrument creating a trust. (3) "Disclaimant" means: (A) the person to whom a disclaimed interest or power would have passed had the disclaimer not been made; (B) the estate to which a disclaimed interest or power would have passed had the disclaimer not been made by the personal representative of the estate; or (C) the trust into which a disclaimed interest or power would have passed had the disclaimer not been made by the	(1) The definitions of “current beneficiary” and “presumptive remainder beneficiary” are needed to determine to whom a trustee must give notice of intention to disclaim under Section 240.0081. (3) A trust can be a “disclaimant” even though it is not a “person” under Section 240.002(10). The purpose of the definition of “disclaimant” is to identify the person, estate or trust to whom disclaimed property would have passed, not the fiduciary holding legal title. (13) “Survivorship property” (governed by Sections 240.052 and 240.106) includes multiple party accounts with rights of survivorship and community property with right of survivorship. It does not include pay on death or transfer on death accounts, which are “beneficiary designation” property subject to Section 240.105.

240.003.	Applicability of Chapter.	This chapter applies to disclaimers of any interest in or power over property, whenever created.	The new statute applies to all disclaimers of interest in or power over property, even if the interest or power (or the right to disclaim it) arose prior to September 1, 2015. HB 2428’s effective date provisions make the old law continue to apply to any disclaimer where the time period for notice or filing had lapsed prior to the new law becoming effective. Because of the nine-month time limit under the prior law, as a practical matter the new law applies to disclaimers of property arising because of a decedent’s death if the decedent died on or after December 1, 2014, if the disclaimer is made on or after September 1, 2015. If the decedent died on or after December 1, 2014, the disclaimant may (1) disclaim before September 1, 2015, following the old law and complying with the nine-month deadline, or (2) disclaim on or after September 1, 2015, following the new law, and the nine-month time law under the prior law will not apply.
240.004.	Chapter Supplemented by Other Law.	(a) Unless displaced by a provision of this chapter, the principles of law and equity supplement this chapter. (b) This chapter does not limit any right of a person to waive, release, disclaim, or renounce an interest in or power over property under a statute other than this chapter.	Because this section does not limit disclaimer rights under another “ statute ,” not another “ law ,” this section probably bars common law disclaimers. The prior disclaimer statute effectively barred common law disclaimers, but the new act is not so clear on this point.
240.005.	Uniformity of Application and Construction.	In applying and construing this chapter, consideration must be given to the need to promote uniformity of the law, with respect to the subject matter of this chapter, among states that enact a law based on the uniform act on which this chapter is based.	Versions of the uniform act have been enacted in 18 states.
240.006.	Power to Disclaim by Person Other Than Fiduciary.	(a) A person other than a fiduciary may disclaim, in whole or in part, any interest in or power over property, including a power of appointment.	This states the general rule that a person may disclaim an interest in or power over property in whole or in part. A person’s power to disclaim is

If a trustee wishes to disclaim a power which could adversely affect trust beneficiaries' distributive rights, he or she may do so only after becoming trustee, and the disclaimer must be compatible with his or her fiduciary obligations as trustee. This gives the beneficiaries recourse to sue the trustee if, by disclaiming the distributive power, the interests of the beneficiaries are harmed.

Notice Required by Trustee Disclaiming Certain Interests in Property; Effect of Notice.	a) A trustee acting in a fiduciary capacity may disclaim an interest in property that would cause the interest in property not to become trust property without court approval if the trustee provides written notice of the disclaimer to all of the current beneficiaries and presumptive remainder beneficiaries of the trust. (b) For the purpose of determining who is a current beneficiary or presumptive remainder beneficiary entitled to the notice under Subsection (a), a beneficiary is determined as of the date the notice is sent. (c) In addition to the notice required under Subsection (a), the trustee shall give written notice of the trustee's disclaimer to the attorney general if: (1) a charity is entitled to notice; (2) a charity entitled to notice is no longer in existence; (3) the trustee has the authority to distribute trust assets to one or more charities that are not named in the trust instrument; or (4) the trustee has the authority to make distributions for a charitable purpose described in the trust instrument, but no charity is named as a beneficiary for that purpose. (d) If the beneficiary has a court-appointed guardian or conservator, the notice required to be given by this section must be given to that guardian or conservator. If the beneficiary is a minor for whom no guardian or conservator has been appointed, the notice required to be given by this section must be given to a parent of the minor. (e) The trustee is not required to provide the notice to a beneficiary who: (1) is known to the trustee and cannot be located by the trustee after reasonable diligence; (2) is not known to the trustee; (3) waives the requirement of the notice under this section; or (4) is a descendant of a beneficiary to whom the trustee	These notice provisions are modeled on the notice required before a trustee may decant (see Section 112.074 of the Texas Trust Code). A beneficiary may waive notice. No notice is required to be given to descendants of a beneficiary who virtually represents his or her descendants – similar interests with no apparent conflict of interest. The notice must include specific information, including a statement that the beneficiary has a right to object to the disclaimer or to petition a court to approve, modify or deny the disclaimer. Acting or not acting on receipt of a notice of disclaimer does not constitute acceptance of the property. Even if the beneficiary does not object or petition a court prior to the disclaimer, he or she does not lose his or her right to sue the trustee for breach of fiduciary obligations. However, once the disclaimer is made after notice, the disclaimer cannot be voided or declared ineffective based on breach of fiduciary duty. See Section 240.008(g).

Subchapter B – Type And Effect Of Disclaimer
240.0501.	Definition.	In this subchapter, "future interest" means an interest that: (1) takes effect in possession or enjoyment, if at all, later than the time at which the instrument creating the interest becomes irrevocable; and (2) passes to the holder of the interest at the time of the event that causes the taker of the interest to be finally ascertained and the interest to be indefeasibly vested.
40.051.	Disclaimer of Interest in Property.	(a) This section and Sections 240.0511 and 240.0512 apply to a disclaimer of an interest in property other than a disclaimer subject to Section 240.052 or 240.053. (b) If an interest in property passes because of the death of a decedent: (1) a disclaimer of the interest: (A) takes effect as of the time of the decedent's death; and (B) relates back for all purposes to the time of the decedent's death; and (2) the disclaimed interest is not subject to the claims of any creditor of the disclaimant. (c) If an interest in property passes because of an event not related to the death of a decedent: (1) a disclaimer of the interest: (A) takes effect: (i) as of the time the instrument creating the interest became irrevocable; or (ii) in the case of an irrevocable transfer made without an instrument, at the time of the irrevocable transfer; and	The Texas Disclaimer Act retains the relation-back doctrine. A disclaimer relates back for all purposes to the time of the decedent's death (or the time of irrevocable transfer), and the disclaimed interest is not subject to the claims of any creditor of the disclaimant. Federal law may make the disclaimer ineffective in some cases. For example, a disclaimer made after a bankruptcy petition is filed probably is ineffective, and disclaimers may be treated as transfers for Medicaid qualification purposes. This section distinguishes between disclaimers of interests passing because of a death and passing because of an event not related to a death. Examples of an interest passing because of an event not related to the death of a decedent are: (1) An interest created when a trust becomes irrevocable prior to the death of a settlor; and (2) an interest created when an income interest in a trust terminates after a set number of years or on a

If not, this section and the following two sections give the rules for determining who is entitled to receive the disclaimed interest.
240.0511.	Disposition of Interest Passing Because of Decedent's Death and Disclaimed by Individual.	(a) Subject to Subsection (b): (1) if by law or under the instrument creating the disclaimed interest the descendants of a disclaimant of an interest passing because of the death of a decedent would share in the disclaimed interest by any method of representation under Section 240.051(e)(2)(A), the disclaimed interest passes only to the descendants of the disclaimant who survive the decedent; or (2) if the disclaimed interest would have passed to the disclaimant's estate under Section 240.051(e)(2)(A), the disclaimed interest instead passes by representation to the descendants of the disclaimant who survive the decedent.	If the disclaimant's descendants are next in line, only those descendants who survive the decedent take. If the disclaimant's estate is next in line, the disclaimed interest passes instead to the surviving descendants of the disclaimant. If no descendant of the disclaimant survives the decedent, the interest passes to the transferor's heirs at law, with no benefit to a remarried surviving spouse.

Disposition of Interest Passing Because of Event Other Than Decedent's Death and Disclaimed by Individual.	(a) Subject to Subsection (b): (1) if by law or under the instrument creating the disclaimed interest the descendants of a disclaimant of an interest passing because of an event not related to the death of a decedent would share in the disclaimed interest by any method of representation under Section 240.051(e)(2)(B), the disclaimed interest passes only to the descendants of the disclaimant living at the time of the event that causes the interest to pass; or (2) if the disclaimed interest would have passed to the disclaimant's estate under Section 240.051(e)(2)(B), the disclaimed interest instead passes by representation to the descendants of the disclaimant living at the time of the event that causes the interest to pass. (b) If no descendant of the disclaimant is living at the time of the event described by Subsection (a)(1), the disclaimed interest passes to those persons, including the state but excluding the disclaimant, and in such shares as would succeed to the transferor's intestate estate under the intestate succession law of the transferor's domicile had the transferor died immediately before the event described by Subsection (a)(1), except that if the transferor's surviving spouse is living but remarried before the event, the transferor is considered to have died unmarried immediately before the event.	The rules for an interest passing because of an event other than a decedent's death (addressed in Section 240.0512) are essentially the same as those for interests passing because of a decedent's death (addressed in Section 240.0511), but they are stated in a separate section for clarity.

		(c) On the disclaimer of a preceding interest, a future interest held by a person other than the disclaimant takes effect as if the disclaimant had died immediately before the time the disclaimer takes effect under Section 240.051(c)(1)(A), but a future interest held by the disclaimant is not accelerated in possession or enjoyment.
240.052.	Disclaimer of Rights in Survivorship Property.	(a) On the death of a holder of survivorship property, a surviving holder may disclaim, in whole or in part, an interest in the property of the deceased holder that would have otherwise passed to the surviving holder by reason of the deceased holder's death. (b) If an interest in survivorship property is disclaimed by a surviving holder of the property: (1) the disclaimer: (A) takes effect as of the time of the deceased holder's death; and (B) relates back for all purposes to the time of the deceased holder's death; and (2) the disclaimed interest is not subject to the claims of any creditor of the disclaimant. (c) An interest in survivorship property disclaimed by a surviving holder of the property passes as if the disclaimant predeceased the holder to whose death the disclaimer relates.	A disclaimer by a person receiving property by right of survivorship applies to that portion of the survivorship property which would otherwise have passed to the disclaimant. For community property, this is the decedent's one-half of survivorship property. For multi-party accounts with right of survivorship, this is the portion of the account the decedent owned immediately prior to death using the proportional contribution rule found in Section 113.102 of the Estates Code. For survivorship property under Section 111.001 of the Estates Code, it is whatever portion of the survivorship property the decedent is treated as owning immediately prior to death.

If the surviving spouse is a beneficiary of both the credit shelter trust and the QTIP trust, under Section 240.053(c), he or she is treated as having predeceased with respect to the credit shelter trust but, under Section 240.053(d), is not treated as having predeceased with respect to the QTIP trust. Therefore, the surviving spouse is allowed to be a beneficiary of the QTIP trust notwithstanding the disclaimer by the trustee of the credit shelter trust.

Tax Qualified Disclaimer.	(a) In this section, "Internal Revenue Code" has the meaning assigned by Section 111.004. (b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, if, as a result of a disclaimer or transfer, the disclaimed or transferred interest is treated under the Internal Revenue Code as never having been transferred to the disclaimant, the disclaimer or transfer is effective as a disclaimer under this chapter.	This is a tax savings catch-all provision. Even if a disclaimer would not otherwise be effective under the Texas Disclaimer Act, if a disclaimer is a qualified disclaimer for federal tax law purposes, it is effective under the Texas act. For this reason, there are no tax-qualified disclaimers which fall outside of the Texas Disclaimer Act, but there are disclaimers permitted under the Texas Disclaimer Act which are not tax-qualified.
240.058.	Partial Disclaimer by Spouse.	A disclaimer by a decedent's surviving spouse of an interest in property transferred as the result of the death of the decedent is not a disclaimer by the surviving spouse of any other transfer from the decedent to or for the benefit of the surviving spouse, regardless of whether the interest that would have passed under the disclaimed transfer passes because of the disclaimer to or for the benefit of the surviving spouse by the other transfer.	This section was carried over from former law so that there is no question that it continues to apply.
Subchapter C – Delivery Or Filing

Section	Title	Text of Statute	Commentary
240.101.	Delivery or Filing Generally.	(a) Subject to applicable requirements of this subchapter, a disclaimant may deliver a disclaimer by personal delivery, first-class mail, facsimile, e-mail, or any other method likely to result in the disclaimer's receipt. (b) If a disclaimer is mailed to the intended recipient by certified mail, return receipt requested, at an address the disclaimant in good faith believes is likely to result in the disclaimer's receipt, delivery is considered to have occurred on the date of mailing regardless of receipt.	Section 240.101 fixes some of the problems with delivery of a disclaimer. Delivery methods are expansive, and Section 240.101(b) imports a good-faith mailbox rule. If the disclaimer is mailed to the appropriate person by certified mail, return receipt requested, at an address the disclaimant in good faith believes is “likely to result in the disclaimer’s receipt,” the delivery is considered to have occurred on the date of mailing (not the date of receipt), and it is considered to be delivered even if the intended recipient never receives it.

Disclaimer of Interest Created Under Intestate Succession or Will.	In the case of an interest created under the law of intestate succession or an interest created by will, other than an interest in a testamentary trust: (1) a disclaimer must be delivered to the personal representative of the decedent's estate; or (2) if no personal representative is then serving, a disclaimer must be filed in the official public records of any county in which the decedent: (A) was domiciled on the date of the decedent's death; or (B) owned real property.	If there is a personal representative of a decedent’s estate, then the disclaimer must be delivered to the personal representative and does not have to be filed anywhere. If there is no personal representative of an estate (even if there is a probate proceeding, such as the probate of a will as a muniment of title or a determination of heirship), the disclaimer is filed in the official public records (real property records) of any county in which the decedent was domiciled at death or owned real property. Filing in the probate proceeding accomplishes nothing, so it should not be done. The filing requirement is either/or: it is not necessary to file in the county of domicile and in a county where real estate is owned; rather, the disclaimant may file in either. 240.106.	Disclaimer by Surviving Holder of Survivorship Property.	In the case of a disclaimer by a surviving holder of survivorship property, the disclaimer must be delivered to the person to whom the disclaimed interest passes.	Section 240.106 is the only section that requires delivery of a disclaimer to the person to whom the disclaimed interest passes. Also delivering a copy of the disclaimer to the third party holding the survivorship property (bank, brokerage firm, etc.) may be wise for practical reasons, but it is not sufficient by itself to make the disclaimer effective.
240.107.	Disclaimer by Object or Taker in Default of Exercise of Power of Appointment.	In the case of a disclaimer by an object or taker in default of an exercise of a power of appointment at any time after the power was created: (1) the disclaimer must be delivered to the holder of the power or to the fiduciary acting under the instrument that created the power; or (2) if no fiduciary is then serving, the disclaimer must be filed: (A) with a court having authority to appoint the fiduciary; or (B) in the official public records of the county in which the creator of the power is domiciled or was domiciled on the date of the creator's death.
240.108.	Disclaimer by Certain Appointees.	In the case of a disclaimer by an appointee of a nonfiduciary power of appointment: (1) the disclaimer must be delivered to the holder, the personal representative of the holder's estate, or the

240.109.	Disclaimer by Certain Fiduciaries.	In the case of a disclaimer by a fiduciary of a power over a trust or estate, the disclaimer must be delivered as provided by Section 240.102, 240.103, or 240.104 as if the power disclaimed were an interest in property.
240.110.	Disclaimer of Power by Agent.	In the case of a disclaimer of a power by an agent, the disclaimer must be delivered to the principal or the principal's representative.

Section	Title	Text of Statute	Commentary
240.111.	Recording of Disclaimer.	If an instrument transferring an interest in or power over property subject to a disclaimer is required or authorized by law to be filed, recorded, or registered, the disclaimer may be filed, recorded, or registered as that instrument. Except as otherwise provided by Section 240.105(c)(2), failure to file, record, or register the disclaimer does not affect the disclaimer's validity between the disclaimant and persons to whom the property interest or power passes by reason of the disclaimer.	This applies to disclaimers which are required or authorized by law to be filed, recorded or registered. Section 12.001 of the Property Code provides that any instrument concerning real or personal property may be recorded if it has been acknowledged. If the disclaimer is acknowledged, it is “authorized” to be filed by Section 12.001. Does this mean that filing a disclaimer that other sections of Subchapter C say “must” be delivered to others (personal representatives, trustees, etc.) is an alternative way to make a disclaimer effective? Section 240.009(a)(5) provides that, to be effective, a disclaimer must be “delivered or filed in the manner provided by Subchapter C.” It is clear that (1) disclaimers do not have to be filed or recorded in order to be effective except in specific circumstances; (2) in those specific circumstances (such as when the interest passes by intestacy and there is no personal representative of the estate – see Section 240.102) disclaimers must be filed or recorded in order to be effective; and (3) any disclaimer is permitted to be filed or recorded if it is acknowledged. It is not clear that filing or recording a disclaimer that other sections of Subchapter C say must be delivered to a person is a safe alternative to that delivery. This approach may work, but it may not, so it probably should not be relied upon.
Subchapter D – Disclaimer Barred Or Limited
240.151.	When Disclaimer Barred or Limited.	(a) A disclaimer is barred by a written waiver of the right to disclaim. (b) A disclaimer of an interest in property is barred if any of the following events occur before the disclaimer becomes effective: (1) the disclaimant accepts the interest sought to be disclaimed by: (A) taking possession of the interest; or (B) exercising dominion and control over the	Section 240.151(b)(1) imports the definition of “acceptance” of a disclaimed interest from Chapter 122. Acceptance of property as a fiduciary is not acceptance of the property individually. For example, if the surviving spouse is the executor of the deceased spouse’s estate, the surviving spouse as executor may take control and possession of

In some states, an ineffective disclaimer causes the property to revert back to the disclaimant. That's not the rule in Texas. A disclaimer by a “child support obligor” as defined in the statute is barred only as to disclaimed property that could be applied to satisfy the specified child support obligations. If the disclaimant is not a “child support obligor,” he or she is not affected and does not have to include language about this in the disclaimer.

This disclaimer is delivered to you in your capacity as personal representative of the estate² of _____ [name of decedent], referred to in this disclaimer as the "Decedent."

I, _____ [name of disclaimant], disclaim any and all right, title and interest in and to any property which I otherwise might be entitled to receive from Decedent's estate by will or intestacy. This is a full disclaimer of all of my right, title and interest in any property or interest in property created by will or intestacy.

[Add if appropriate. I do not disclaim my interest in _____ [describe interest in non-probate assets not being disclaimed – trust property, beneficiary designation property, survivorship property, etc.].³

 [signature of disclaimant]⁴

¹ If the disclaimer is mailed by certified mail, return receipt requested, at an address believed in good faith to be likely to result in receipt, delivery is considered to have occurred on the date of mailing regardless of receipt. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.101(b). Care should be taken to retain proof of mailing.

² If a personal representative of the decedent's estate is then serving, the disclaimer must be delivered to the personal representative. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.102.

³ If non-probate assets also are being disclaimed, the disclaimer should be perfected by delivering the disclaimer to the appropriate person under Sections 240.103 – 240.110. Mentioning the disclaimer of these assets in the disclaimer delivered to the personal representative is unlikely to be sufficient to make the disclaimer effective. On the other hand, if the disclaimant is disclaiming property from the probate estate but accepting certain non-probate property, it probably is a good idea to mention this here to avoid confusion.

⁴ The disclaimant's signature does not need to be notarized, see Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.009, unless it is to be recorded. If it is convenient to have the disclaimant's signature notarized, there is no reason not to do so.

[Option 1 -- Will probated as muniment of title:] _____ [name of decedent], referred to in this disclaimer as the "Decedent," died on or about _____, _____ [date of death], and the Decedent's will was admitted to probate as a muniment of title in Cause No. _____ in the _____ [name of court] of _____ County, Texas. No personal representative is now serving with respect to the Decedent's estate.

[Option 2 – Estate proceeding but no current personal representative:] _____ [name of decedent], referred to in this disclaimer as the "Decedent," died on or about _____, _____ [date of death]. The Decedent's estate was the subject of a proceeding in Cause No. _____ in the _____ [name of court] of _____ County, Texas. No personal representative is now serving with respect to the Decedent's estate.

[Option 3 – No estate proceeding:] _____ [name of decedent], referred to in this disclaimer as the "Decedent," died on or about _____, _____ [date of death]. No personal representative is now serving with respect to the Decedent's estate.

Choose one of these two options:²

[Option 1 -- Domiciled in county:] The Decedent was domiciled in _____ County, Texas, on the date of the Decedent's death.

I, _____ [name of disclaimant], disclaim any and all right, title and interest in and to any property which I otherwise might be entitled to receive from Decedent's estate by will or intestacy. This is a full disclaimer of all of my right, title and interest in any property or interest in property created by will or intestacy.

Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.102(2). The three most likely ways in which a personal representative would not be serving are (1) the will was probated as a muniment of title, (2) there was an estate proceeding but no personal representative is now serving, or (3) there was no estate proceeding. Although the statute does not require the disclaimer to include information about the estate proceeding, if there was an estate proceeding it is prudent to include information about it.

² If there is no personal representative, the disclaimer may be filed in any county in which the decedent was domiciled on the date of death or owned real property. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.102(2). It is not necessary to file in both places. Also, filing a disclaimer in a county where the decedent owned real property makes the disclaimer effective with respect to personal property wherever located and with respect to real property not located in that county.

[Trustee's letterhead]

_____, 20__ [date of notice]¹

Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested²
No. _____

To: _____ [name of beneficiary]³
_____ [address]

Re: Trustee's notice of intent to disclaim

Dear _____ [name of beneficiary]:

I am the trustee of the _____ [name of trust], referred to in this notice as the "Trust." You are a current beneficiary or presumptive remainder beneficiary of the Trust. This notice is being given to you in accordance with Section 240.0081 of the Texas Property Code.

1. In my capacity as trustee of the Trust, I intend to disclaim all right, title and interest in and to the following described property (referred to in this notice as the "Property"):⁴

² The notice may be sent by personal delivery, first-class mail, facsimile, e-mail, or any other method likely to result in the notice's receipt. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.0081(f)(6). Unlike the delivery requirements for disclaimers (see Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.101(b)), there is no safe harbor for certified mail. Therefore, the safest practice would be to collect the acknowledgments of receipt of certified mail and use the latest of these as the beginning of the 30-day period.

³ The trustee must give notice to current beneficiaries and presumptive remainder beneficiaries. These terms are defined in Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.002. In addition, notice must be given to the attorney general if a charity is a beneficiary or potential beneficiary. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.0081(c). If the beneficiary is has a court-appointed guardian or conservator, the notice must be given to the guardian or conservator. If a minor beneficiary has no court appointed guardian or conservator, the notice must be given to a parent of the minor. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.0081(d). The notice does not have to be given to a beneficiary who waives notice (see Form 3.2), who is not known to the trustee, who is known to the trustee but cannot be located after reasonable diligence, or who is a descendant of a beneficiary to whom the trustee has given notice if they have similar interests and no apparent conflict of interest. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 240.0081(e).

¹ Section 240.0081 of the Property Code does not require the beneficiary waiving notice to acknowledge receipt of material information or understanding the effect of the disclaimer, but the trustee may wish to have these acknowledgments for the trustee's protection.

² Caution: While some trustees may wish to include a release, the release may be deemed to be consideration received by the trustee for making the disclaimer, which could make the disclaimer ineffective for tax purposes. In order for the release to be effective, the beneficiary must be acting on full information in order for the release to be effective. Tex. Prop. Code Sec. 114.005.

³ Section 240.0081 of the Property Code does not require the waiver to be notarized, but the trustee may wish to require an acknowledgment for his or her protection.
